

CELEBRATING
90TH ANNIVERSARY
COMMUNIST CHINESE PARTY

JULY 1, 2011

Sing, Read, Speak, Spread

Jun 14, 2011 10:57 AM EDT

The release of last week's "Beginning of the Great Revival" heralded the beginning of a series of events in China marking the anniversary of the establishment of the Communist Party in the country. The film stars the Chinese film industry's biggest names such as Andy Lau and Chow Yun-fat and traces the developments between the 1911 revolution that overthrew imperial rule and the establishment of the Chinese Communist Party in July of 1921.

On July 1st, China will celebrate the 90th anniversary of the founding of the Communist Party in China (CPC). Here's a look at some of the preparations:

Young performers from Chongqing municipality dance wearing costumes resembling former PLA soldiers as they sing songs during a performance named "Sing, Read, Speak, Spread" to celebrate the upcoming 90th anniversary of the Communist Party of China (CPC), in Beijing, June 12, 2011. China will celebrate the upcoming 90th anniversary of the founding of the Communist Party of China (CPC) on July 1, 2011.

Source: REUTERS / Stringer

Performers from Chongqing municipality wearing costumes of policemen and firefighters, sing songs during a performance named "Sing, Read, Speak, Spread" to celebrate the upcoming 90th anniversary of the Communist Party of China (CPC), in Beijing, June 12, 2011. China will celebrate the upcoming 90th anniversary of the founding of the Communist Party of China (CPC) on July 1, 2011.

Source: REUTERS / Stringer

Sing
Read
Speak
Spread

This is what Butch Otter and Don Dietrich want to bring to Idaho through the Project 60, EB-5 visa and “foreign direct investment” scheme.